ICPHR, in conjunction with CQUniversity’s Centre for Professional Development, is pleased to offer a 10 month online course in Participatory Health Research. This course will allow you to complete a small PHR project. You will be supported in your learning through a study guide, online discussion forums guided by an experienced facilitator, and collaboration with other students. This non-accredited course is aimed at practitioners wanting to increase their understanding of participatory health research and how it can be incorporated into everyday practice.

NB You will need to have a small project in mind with a commitment from your partners prior to commencing the course.

February
- How did PHR come about and what does participatory mean?

March
- How do we know what we know? How does that influence our reflection and action in PHR? How do we start?

April
- How do we plan a PHR project? What data do we need to demonstrate results, evaluation and impact?

May
- Do we need ethical clearance?

June
- How do we manage the data collected as part of a PHR project?

August
- Breathe (catch up on project)

October
- Exploring dilemmas in PHR. Lessons learnt.

Dates:
- February – November

Cost:
- $850 AU

Time commitment:
- 4-5 hours a month + project time

Contact:
- Dr Wendy Madsen
- CQUniversity
- Rockhampton, 4702.
- Australia
- Ph:  +61 7 4930 9823
- Email: w.madsen@cqu.edu.au